

The Hottest New Restaurants in the Seattle Area, December 2022

A vegan Jewish deli on Capitol Hill, an award-winning Turkish pop-up's new home in Ballard, and other noteworthy new spots to try in the Seattle area

by Adam H. Callaghan and Eater Staff | Updated Dec 1, 2022, 2:31pm PST

Baekjeong Lynnwood

Baekjeong Korean Barbecue, considered one of Los Angeles' best KBBQ chains, now has a glossy new restaurant in Lynnwood's Alderwood Mall. The meat is all USDA Prime or better, with options including whole boneless ribeye steaks, boneless short ribs, thin-sliced pork belly, and pork jowl. Baekjeong also serves organ meats like beef mountain tripe, beef large intestine, and beef abomasum, sometimes served marinated a couple of different ways. Beyond KBBQ, it also offers a la carte dinner and lunch options, with a grilled cheese sandwich stuffed with beef bulgogi, what looks like a straight-up cheeseburger, and bento-style boxes with rice and a few side dishes.

OPEN IN GOOGLE MAPS

3000 184th St SW #3500, Lynnwood, WA 98037

(425) 490-6328

Visit Website

